The Jodhpore Lancers. On January 12, a band of mounted Mancharian robbers surrounded a foraging party of the Jodhpore lancers and some Japanese infantry five miles from Shanbaikuan. One trooper escaped with the news, and the Jodhnore officers hastened out with twenty men and arrived in the nick of time. In one house three mon had been hemmed in, one shot dead, the house being afterwards fired and the two remaining troopers, were all but suffocated. Farther on three troopers were found defending three Indian coolies with only two of three cartridges remaining. Five Japanese were killed and pine of the Jodhpore mules. After a stern force had to retire. The next day a force of 100 cavalry and 400 infantry and a company of Japanese went out, but the big village was described and the band was prohably in safety in the hills. ASTRONOMY MADE

INTERESTING.

'The Sun and its Heat,'

That most interesting of scientific lecfurers, Sir Robert Ball, has been delivering a series of lectures on 'Great Chapters from the Book of Nature' at the Royal Institution, the lectures being intonded to illustrate the learing of modern astronomical discovery on Laplace's famous doctrine of the evolution of the aun and planets. Sir Robert Ball devoted his opening lecture to 'The Sun and its Heat.' The aun, he pointed out, was the source of all the heat received by this earth; it might seem rather puzzling to find that the ternperature graw colder as one climbed to the top of a mountain and thus got nearer this source of heat, but the explanation was that the air acted as a sort of cosy, and the climber lost more warmth by going par-tially through it than he gained by approaching bearer the sun. In size the sun was in comparison with the earth as a goodsized coconnut to a grain of mustard seed, and he poured forth his best from every part of his surface. No one was so foelish as to suppose that all this heat was intended only for this earth :- there was, indeed, enough of it to warm millions of worlds like ours if they were properly disposed round the sun. It was a literal scientific fact that, as calculated by Professor Langley, all the coal in the world would not supply the sun's heat for one tenth of a second. Another indication of the intensity of the 1 Q×P, K×Kt, 2 Q-R 2 ch, K-K 4 heat he gave off was the fact that the rays collected by a large burning glass were able to melt the most refractory substances. In the Paris Exhibition a steam engine press by heat derived directly from the sun : the boiler was placed in the focus of a big mirror, which, by gathering together the The competition for the cup presented hot beams, boiled the water and produced was, as yet, only a plaything, but it might come to be of vast importance. The spots to be seen on the su face of the sun were ronts in the brilliant external envelope which enabled the dark interior to be seen they appeared to be moving across the disc, but the truth was that the sun himself revolved in a period of about 25 days. Photo graphy was able to reveal something of the structure of the am. The external envelope looked us if it wore of a granular texture, made up of little bits of wool each of these little bits however, was as largo as Great Britain at least. The brilliant outside was a coating only-about as thick in proportion to thewhole as the delicate skin of a peach. What was the sun made that floated over him? What gave the sun its

of? What made the film of luminus clouds power of being so bright and beautiful? If it were asked what was the most important discovery of the century now ending, there was no doubt that the reply should be, as far as the heavens were concerned, the discovery of the actual materials composing the heavenly bodies. To find this out would have been considered impossible a hundred years ago, since it was impossible to take a piece of the sun or of a star into the laboratory for analysis; now it was one of the famous truths of science. The sun was known to consist essentially of the same substances as the earth. One of these was calcium, which, though in the metallic form it was very rare and precious, was plentiful in the form of lime and of great importance to the inhabitants of this earth. Carbon, again, was another very abundant substance on the earth, and it was also a most important element in the sun, for it eclipse, when the moon coming between the sun and the earth shut off the direct light of the former from us. Then the sun was seen to be girdled with huge rosy tlames or prominences which were ordinarily blotted out from our view by his own brilliance, though by a method invented by Lockyer and Jaunsen it was possible to see them even when there was no actual eclipse. During a total eclipse, too. and then only, the pearly light of the corona was visible encircling the sun's disc. The sun was continually in a state of florce excitement and was always parting with his heat. Now, it was a well-known fact that most things in cooling became smaller ; a poker, for example, was shorter when it was cold than when it was red hot. The sun, too, must obey this fundamental law, and must therefore be getting smaller. If we could measure its diameter on two (a) A novelty; 6 B takes Kt and 6 P successive days we should find it had takes P are White's authorised continue decreased by nine inches—that was to say, tions.

(b) K 3 would have been a better square feet a week, or a mile in ever 20 years. In to go to. This Knight behaves too much view of this shrinkage, some of the younger members of his audience night feel auxious lest the aun should not last their time. Such. 5, R to K sq : 17 Kt takes P, or 17 B to Kt 40,000 years for him to bereduced by 2,000 3, either is good enough. But Black seeing miles to 858,000, and the lecturer was sure 860,000 miles in diameter and the other 858,000, no one would be able to tell by looking at them which of the two was the smaller. . But as the sun was shrinking ninevery much greater than he was now. But he always had the same amount of material sent; hence the inference was that he was once a huge mass of rarefied gas- a great, glowing pebula.

THE NAVY U. THE H.K. C.C. A match was commenced to-day, on the Cricket Ground, between teams representling the Navy and the Hongkong Cricket Club. The pitch was in very good condition, but the outfield more than once puzded the fielders, it not having recovered from the effects of the Proclamation Ceremony. One ball by coming in contact with small ridge where the flagpole and platform had been, bounced clean over the fielder's head. The Navy compiled the splendid score of 331, Captain Strong heading the list with a well-earned 79. Mr Franklin, another well-known player, scored 73, and Lieut, Mayhow also came out well with 45. Hongkong is not alone in its growl over the recent proclamation coromony, Singapore has a grievance also, though had the Press been wise it would not, in the opinion of the firm, have been brought forward. The Singapore complaint is enunciated in the Straits Times, and is to the effect that the Editors of the local press were officially ignored. We, in Hongkong, were treated just as cavalierly, but we didn't say anything about it, for the simple reason that we were jubilantly glad not to have been included, officially, in a wretched onergies to the task of extracting sumhine fiasco. One would have thought, however, that Mr W. E. St. Clair, the Free Press of yourself. Editor, who is second in command of the local Volunteer Porces, possessed a locus standi entitling him to m official invite to participate in the proceedings, such as they were. The conclusion that the Straits Times Editor arrives at, -indeed, he was bluntly told as much-is that the Press in Singapore has no official existence. This may be so there, and is certainly so here, but there is a wide margin between actual discourtesy and official recognition, and this is the sore point down woath.

If the Hon. F. H. May is not yet provided with a coat-of-arms, he will probably thank the Herald's department of the Firm for supplying him with one. Truly, it is pleasant living in s Crown Colony.

What would have happened had Dr Hartigan accepted Mr May's challenge and but gradually the Siege Train men got the gone outside? You are a Job's conforter, and no mistake, Mr Editor. What, in the name of all that is miserable, do you want to predict that the new school at Kowloon, rapidly approaching completion, will ultimately become Chinese instead of European? The Europeans in Kowloon are doing their best to populate the Peninsula with their own race, and as the numerous youngsters increase and multiply, it has pleased the European pater-familias to reflect that, maskee Hongkong, Kowloon will lave a purely English school. Now, you go and knock this bestific vision on the head with a beastly prophecy of your own. We want no higher education for our youngsters than is provided in the Colony, namely, a sound general and commercial one. Before distributing the prizes, Mr A. J. May thus addressed the boys :- This is a British School, on British soil, and under British government, where, among other things, British ileas, and to a cortain ortent, British customs are instilled into the minds of the pupils. We: British have a custom, that when we speak of one highly respected and deeply-loyed, but who is no more, we stand with our heads uncovered. as a mark of respect. Some of you know that it has been an annual custom for Her late Majosty's representative to be present lo distribute the prizes, and to say a few words of encounagement and advice to the students of this College. The present represontative of our monarch, Sir Henry Blake, would have been very pleased to have been here to-day to distribute these prizes, but as a mark of respect to Her Majesty, by whom he was duly appointed our governor, he has for the present withdrawn from all public functions, and so he is not here to-Yesterday afternoon, on the ground of day. Many of you here have learned History-though I fear that the marks obtained for this subject in the late examination scarcely bear out that fact—but I Division, R.G.A., and the 25th Co., know you are aware that some of the English monarchs have been good, and others might have been better. THEIR CLAIMS SET AT REST.

ITHE claim of other cough medicines to

1 be as good as Chamberlain's are effec-of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett

& Dennis Co., Gardiner, Mc. He says : 'I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of hir.

Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and defered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sere

at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief.

I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines.' For sale by All Dealers, WATKINS
